WELCOME

TO CHERBOURG-EN-COTENTIN!

Not far from the Channel Islands, on the Normandy coastline at the tip of the Cotentin peninsula, the city of Cherbourg-en-Cotentin promises a taste of the good life.

The maritime history of Cherbourg goes back a long way, its vestiges include the amazing manmade harbour, Europe's largest, and the former Transatlantic Maritime Terminal, the last remains of European Art Deco architecture from the 1930s. The building now contains the Cité de la Mer, a museum that recounts the human venture into the ocean depths, and the Cruise-ship Terminal which is now a port of call for the world's biggest liners.

Lights, camera, action!

"The Umbrellas of Cherbourg", the 1963 feature film directed by Jacques Demy, was shot entirely in this city. It won the prestigious Palme d'Or award at the Cannes Film Festival in 1964. Explore the filming sites by following an itinerary, "In the footsteps of Jacques Demy", you can find the brochure at the Tourist Office.

The Cotentin Tourist Office recommends its personal favorites, some great addresses, sights to see and museums to visit... Enjoy your stopover!

OUR DESTINATION, YOUR EXPERIENCE !

Transatlantic Maritime Terminal

THE CITY AND PORT OF CHERBOURG, A STRATEGIC SITE DURING THE SECOND WORLD WAR!

The deep-water harbour of Cherbourg played an important role in helping the Allies win back France after the Normandy landings on 6th June 1944. In just a few months, Cherbourg became the world's largest port ever to be exploited for military purposes.

RELIVE THE LEGEND!

On 10th April 1912, the Titanic dropped anchor in Cherbourg, its final port of call on the Continent, before sailing to Queenstown (now Cobh) in Ireland. So it was actually from here that the giant cruise ship set sail for the Americas! This moving journey into the past continues at the Cité de la Mer in an exhibition entitled "Titanic, Return to Cherbourg".
